INTRODUCTION

Salaries comprise 66% of the cost of education in Maryland. The largest share of the salaries goes to teachers and others who work with students on a daily basis. Therefore, it is essential to the success of education in Maryland that salaries are competitive with other professional positions so competent, qualified, and dedicated instructional staff are recruited initially and encouraged to remain in the profession.

In Maryland, educational funding is the joint responsibility of the 24 local governments and the state. Teacher and other school system employee salary schedules are determined within the individual system through negotiations with the school board and the county government. The State of Maryland has little input into school system salary schedules but has influence indirectly through state aid initiatives earmarked for salary improvements.

During the 1980's, public support for salary increases has allowed local school systems to improve teachers' pay and restore previously lost purchasing power. During this decade when the Consumer Price Index increased 57%, Maryland teachers fared much better. On the average, salaries increased over 115%. At the entry level, the increase was about 105%.

Improving teacher's salaries was a national trend with teacher salaries increasing by 96% from 1979 to 1989. Maryland teachers did slightly better than the average teacher nationally. From 1980 to 1989, Maryland's rank in average salary rose from 10th to 6th[1].

As a condition of employment, Maryland teachers and administrators must obtain valid certification from the State Superintendent of Schools. In addition to meeting minimum educational requirements, teaching applicants must pass several tests in the National Teacher Examination (NTE) series to qualify for a Standard Professional Certificate. An Advanced Professional Certificate is available after 3 years of successful teaching experience for teachers who have met minimum education requirements.

The following tables were approved for public release by the local boards of education. For information about employment possibilities in Maryland school systems, please contact the personnel office(s) of the school systems(s) in which you are interested.

INTRODUCTION

The following Tables were prepared from the Staff Reporting System, a computer database developed by the Maryland State Department of Education's (MSDE) Office of Management Information Systems (OMIS). Local Education Agencies in Maryland report these data to OMIS on magnetic tape in November of the current school year for staff members who are active as of October 15. Staff are further reported in the category in which they are budgeted in accordance with the Financial Reporting Manual for Maryland Public Schools. Hourly and contractual employees are excluded from the report.

The tables include the full-time equivalent (FTE) number of staff who are employed in the instructional and noninstructional functions at the local level. As in the past, the ratio of the number of instructional staff per 1,000 students in Grades Prek-12 including school level administrators has been included in this publication.

The compilation of these data were made possible by the excellent cooperation of local education agencies who strived for completeness and accuracy in submitting the reports.

INTRODUCTION

This report presents the distribution of the student population in Maryland Public Schools by race/ethnic categories. Section I shows the distribution by school district and geographic regions of the state, while Section II shows the total minority students (Blacks, Asians, Hispanics and American Indians) as a percent of enrollment in each school.

Since 1980, the percentage of minority students enrolled in Maryland public schools has increased by more than five percent from 33.3 percent in 1980 to 38.9 percent in 1990. This increase has been mainly in school systems within the National Capital region of the state and can be attributed to the increase in the number of Asian and Hispanic students. Enrollment in each group nearly doubled in size during this period. The number of Asian students rose from 13,578 (1.8%)in 1980 to 24,378 (3.5%) in 1990. Likewise, the number of Hispanic students rose from 6,859 (0.9%) to 16,507 (2.3%) during the same period.

Black students, representing the largest minority group, make up almost one-third of the student population (32.9%). In 1980, Black students represented 30.4 percent of the population. Between 1982 and 1986, Black enrollment declined by about 11,000 students just as overall public school enrollment declined. Since 1986 however, Black enrollment has begun an upward trend and now exceeds the number enrolled in 1980.

Methodology

The data for this report were submitted by local education agencies in Maryland in response to a survey developed by the Office of Management Information Systems. Included in the report are students who are enrolled in regular and special programs in prekindergarten[1] through grade twelve, excluding evening high school. The race/ethnic categories correspond to those designated by the Office for Civil Rights and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission on their school and staff surveys. For the purposes of this report, the term "minority" includes students reported as American Indian/Alaskan Native, Black, Hispanic and Asian.

Results

Table 1 in Section I presents the fall 1990 enrollment in each race/ethnic category by local education agency grouped by geographic regions of the state. Inspection of Table 1 indicates the National Capital region, comprised of Prince George's and Montgomery counties, enrolls the largest percentage of minority students (56.0%) and is the most ethnicly diverse region in the state. This is chiefly due to the large minority population in Prince George's county (73.4%) and the growth in the Asian and Hispanic populations in Montgomery county. Figure 1 presents the race/ethnic distribution of students as a percent of the total enrollment in 1990. Figure 2 presents the percent of minorities in each region of the state.

[1] Prekindergarten enrollment is excluded in the following counties: Carroll, Charles and Prince George's.

Table 2 presents the enrollment trends at the state level for even years from 1980 through 1990 Figure 3 highlights the growth in Asian and Hispanic enrollment during this same period.

Section II presents the total enrollment, grade span and the number and percent of minority students enrolled in each school in Maryland. Of the 1,217 schools in the state, 15 (1.2%) have no minority representation. Most of these schools are in Garrett County where minorities make up 0.2 percent of the enrollment. Conversely, 28 schools (2.3%) have 100% minority enrollment. The majority of these schools are in Baltimore city where minorities make up over 80% of the enrollment.

Enrollment in vocational schools which provide programs to students from various high schools in the county are not included in this report. Those students are counted at their home based school.

Introduction

The following report presents an analysis of salaries earned by professional staff employed in Maryland public schools. The report includes selected central office staff, school level administrators, teachers, and other professionals. The salaries are derived from local payroll records of individuals and include their annual base pay, determined by education and experience, plus stipends for longevity, extra duties, and extended contracts. Salaries of individuals employed part-time are equated to full-time.

Table 1 presents the statewide calculation of the average and median salary, as well as the salaries at the first and third quartiles for each position classification. Tables 2 through 25 give similar information for each local education agency (LEA) in the state. Appendix A presents the average instructional salary and the percent change between October, 1986 and October, 1990. Appendix B shows the average, median, and quartiles for classroom teachers grouped by regions with LEA salaries indexed to the region.

Calculations:

Average (mean) salaries, computed by summarizing individual salaries and dividing the total by the number of equivalent positions in the group, is the figure most frequently used for comparison. However, it's value is influenced by extremely high or low salaries in the distribution and may not provide a true estimate of the population average. Therefore, the median is also provided as a more stable calculation of "average salary". The median represents the salary which divides the group in half where fifty percent earn more and fifty percent earn less. The first and third quartiles provide an estimation of the distribution of salaries across the group. For example, the bottom twenty-five percent is determined by the salary at the first quartile and the top twenty-five percent is determined by the salary at the third quartile. Inspection of Table 1 indicates that the twenty-five percent of the classroom teachers in the state are paid $31,831 or less, while twenty-five percent earn a salary of $43,976 or higher.

Position Classifications:

The position types used in this report are based on definitions prescribed in the Specifications and Procedures Manual for the Staff Reporting System. Directors, coordinators, and supervisors include persons in charge of instructional and administrative functions, maintenance and operation of schools, food service, health and transportation.

Persons whose time is split between functions are counted once in their primary function.

Introduction

Selected Financial Data is prepared annually by the Maryland State Department of Education to provide financial information about the local education agencies (LEA's) in Maryland. Part 2 of this series contains information about expenditures in a format designed to provide enough information to achieve historical continuity, conformity to State budget requirements, and conformity to federal expenditure definitions.

Information on the tables which follow were provided by each LEA on the Annual Financial Report forms (AFR 04100 series). Expenditure reports are submitted for all locally-available unrestricted expenditures, and for each federal restricted program, each state program requiring a restricted report, and for locally-restricted programs. From these reports, a summary report is prepared to consolidate the details. This summary report is reconciled by category to the LEA's independent auditor report, thereby assuring the integrity of the component reports.

This year, Table 1 reveals expenditures reported by the LEA's for the Student Activities Fund. These funds are generally maintained on a cash basis and are owned and operated by the student body under the direction of the LEA. These expenditures have not been included in any of the total columns and are presented for information only to give a more complete picture of the total cost of education.
